Welcome to Tread Softly...

Tread Softly celebrates the legacy of brothers, Jack B. and William Butler Yeats. The festival runs in conjunction with the 58th Yeats International Summer School and this year aligns with Sligo Jazz Festival; all joining forces to create a central cultural festival for Sligo at the height of the tourist season.

The festival offers a broad range of arts and literary events from exhibitions, theatre, music, children's and family events, and guided walks through Yeats County.

This year's highlights include Jack B. Yeats Lives exhibition at The Model; Freddie White, SJP All Stars and Kieran Quinn's Theme Night 18 at the Hawk's Well Theatre; 90 Shades of Crazy Jane at the Hamilton Gallery; and as part of this year's A Country Under Wave, productions of The Cat and the Moon by both The Shigeyama Family and Blue Raincoat Theatre.

We hope you are able to enjoy some of the events we have on offer this year.

Jack B. Yeats Lives

Trace characters' development in Jack Butler Yeats' artistic practice, through an exploration of his illustrations, pencil sketches, watercolours, and the iconic oil paintings of his later mature period.

In a practice spanning 70 years and displaying a wide variety of styles, Yeats' subject-matter changed very little from his earliest work to his latest. The characters he encountered in the west of Ireland - seafarer, market-trader, street balladeer - became the mainstay of his artistic life. The meaning of this cast of marginal characters changed over the years, romantic depictions of rural people and ordinary life gave way to more gritty and realistic representations of Irishness, so too, did this give way to a more mature treatment of the human figure as an archetype.

Forged Carved Cast

The primary elements of contemporary Irish sculpture are drawn together in "Forged Carved Cast", an exhibition by four of Ireland's celebrated sculptors. The artists have made a personal selection of works to feature in the exhibition; collectively giving insight into their unique voices, the forging, carving and casting processes they are involved in, and the variety of materials used ranging from bronze to stone. The exhibition is a fascinating and dynamic insight into the world of contemporary Irish sculpture.

90 Shades of Crazy Jane

“Crazy Jane” is the third iteration of Hamilton Gallery’s immensely successful annual invited artists exhibition series themed around the works of W. B. Yeats. Ninety visual artists from all over Ireland bring their own contemporary visual reflections to bear on Yeats’ most potent and visceral female foil Crazy Jane. Through her they comment afresh, with the crazy perceptive of an artists eye, on modern Ireland 100 years on from the birth of the state.

Echoes

Sligo born artist Kate MacDonagh explores dualities in a forest of Japanese woodblock prints on Japanese paper. 'Echoes', an installation of suspended prints is a haunting work of overlapping and rippling screens, its textured and indigo palettes echoing a mysterious landscape. The work captures the dualities of light and dark, scale and ephemerality, stillness and movement, the spectral and the material. The installation is theatrical, drawing inspiration from the Yeats play 'At the Hawk's Well'.

Stories of Red Hanrahan

poet, song-maker
and visionary

The stories of Red Hanrahan were written by William Butler Yeats with the help of Lady Gregory. The narratives were based on folktales, which Yeats and Lady Gregory collected amongst the country folk near her home. Yeats infused the stories with themes from Irish mythology and esoteric traditions.

Be enthralled, be entranced with an evening of music and story performed by Fionnuala Gill and Amabel Clarke.

Amabel Clarke is a spellcaster, a storyteller with a passion for folklore and legends.

Fionnuala Gill is a renowned singer and harpist from Dublin, ex-lead Singer with Riverdance and Secret Garden.

Click Clack Creative Writing Session

From the team that bring you Illuminations open mic, Click Clack creative writing sessions are a new way for writers, artists, poets and scribblers of all persuasions to share ideas and get feedback on their work. Here's how a typical night works: A selection of prompts will be laid out and everyone will be asked to write something inspired by them. We tend to write for about fifty minutes. Afterwards, we each read out our work and provide positive feedback.

A great way for aspiring or experienced writers to try out new ideas and meet fellow wordsmiths! Facilitated by writer Eoghan Timoney.

What We See and What We Know

The death of British intellectual John Berger in January resulted in an outpouring of tributes from the worlds of art, history, media and the wider public.

A prolific writer, his seminal 1972 BBC television series and book Ways Of Seeing has framed debate on the very question of what is art and how we interact with it. In this lively panel discussion with John Molyneaux, Andy Parsons and more we note Berger's legacy and humanity.
